If you're looking for a professional way to host your video content, Coub is a free solution. We've also partnered with Coub to build a more pro tool to host even more videos. Grammarly: Another website that's made our list for the sake of being on the list is Grammarly. This is a useful app that helps users improve their grammar. While it might not have a lot of features, this tool can be a godsend when it comes to writing out emails, texts, and even on social media. JotNot: If you're looking for a more visual solution to email writing, we've got you covered with JotNot. This app lets you collaborate on text through sketches and photos. SofaSurf: Finally, if you're looking for a solution to help you learn more about how to write properly, we've got you covered with SofaSurf. This is a free tool that helps you learn from professional writers. This is a great resource if you're looking to learn what experts do when they compose emails and letters. Setting up your email marketing Before we move on, it's important to note that an effective email marketing campaign isn't easy. That said, there are a lot of free tools to help you set it up. Some of the more popular solutions include MailChimp: We've already mentioned MailChimp in the header of this article. It's free to get started and it has a lot of features that can help you build your audience. That said, if you want to stay in the MailChimp camp, you'll have to pay for their plan. We've found it to be pretty affordable. AWeber: For a premium solution, AWeber is a great option. Their premium plan is worth it, but if you're looking for a free option, they offer a basic plan that's plenty enough for most people. It might not offer some of the more advanced features that MailChimp offers, but it can still help you get started with email marketing. IFTTT: The last option we have is IFTTT. This is a service that's been a major player in the email marketing world. It's well 82157476af
